Questions:

1. Tell me (in 4-5 complete sentences minimum) your initial thoughts of the video? Do agree or disagree? Why or Why Not?

After watching this video it makes me think about how many opportunities people miss when looking at their phones rather than seeing the real world. I agree with the points that this video made because I think it is very much likely that if someone immersed themselves in technology 24/7 they could miss a great number of things, including a wife. I think that if people took a second to see the real world they would see just how much there is to see, if you think of, Oh the places you’ll go by Dr. Suess, it talks about there are many paths, right and wrong, abusing technology would be a wrong one. The book also says that if you don’t like the path you’re going down just turn around and choose a different one, so if you are addicted to technology it’s never too late to stop.

2. Do you think that the world around us is losing Face-to-Face communication because of technology (e.i., cell phones, social media, Chromebooks, and/or Ipads)?

I think that the world around us is losing Face-to-Face time, more and more every new iPhone generation. Every new mac and pc, kindle and nook, every iPod and iPad update. Every day more and more people talk less and less to actual people, replacing it with online game/server chat, or FaceTime and iMessage. I think that Face-to-Face is turning into Face-to-screen or Face-to-FaceTime. The more technology advances and the cheaper it gets it easier it is to replace that with actual talking and actual quality time.

3. Does Technology play a role in your OWN life? If so, do you think it has made you isolated? In other words would you rather stay inside and play an online game to talk to friends verses going outside to hangout with friends? Complete in 5-6 sentences minimum.

Technology has played a role in my life just not in an addicting sort of way that controls my life. I don’t think that technology has made me isolated, I have plenty of friends that I see in person every day and on the weekends. In my opinion I have a healthy relationship with technology, I only spend a couple hours at most a day on it (outside of school) and can control myself and go days without going on my home computer (except for homework). If I were faced with the decision to go to a friend’s house to stay home on the computer I would choose my friend any day of the week. In my opinion it is wrong to want to go on the computer more than to a friend’s house because that’s like holding technology on a higher pedestal than your own friends.
